THE COURTS.

Our Grand Military Parade Ground - Property Owners Moving in the Matter.

DUSINESS IN THE OTHER COURTS.

Fifteen retail liquor dealers, from various parts of the city, were yesterday arrested and brought before United States Commissioner Shields, charged with non-payment of the internal revenue tax levied upon their business. Some of them paid the tax, together with the costs of their arrest, waite others were held to ball to answer.

OUR PUBLIC PARADE GROUND

A Motion for Continuance of the Work by the Commissioners-The Argument of Opposing Counsel.

The Legislature of 1871 passed an act providing for the laying out of a public parade ground for our citizen s idiers, to perfect themselves in military manœuvres. Under this act Messrs. William C. Traphagen, John McClave and William A. Seaver were appointed Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment. The ground selected by the Department of Public Parks and General Shaler as most Suitable for the purpose was a plot of eighty-two acres on the Hariem River, about mile below Kingsbridge. When the Commissioners were about ready to make their report the Department of Public Parks ordered a discontinace of any inrther proceedings in the case. The matter has been lying in this shape for some time. Meantime some of the National Guard regiments have interposed objections to the locality as too remote from their armories, and altogether have ought to throw cold water on the entire proceedings. But the property owners have felt dissatisfied at this standstill, and are anxious to get pay for their property, and, with a view to put the ball again in motion, a motion on their behalf was again in motion, a motion on their behalf was made yesterday in Supreme Court, Chambers, before Judge Lawrence, to compet the Commissioners to make their report

FOR THE CONTINIANCE OF THE WORK.

Mr. William R. Martin, who appeared in support of the motion, said that he did not rely on any distant authorities nor claim that the owners had yested interests in the sense that the courts had decided them to be vested, after the confirmation of the reports in cases similar to this, but argued upon the direct and precise interpretation of the statute of 1871, under which this proceeding was taken. This statute nowhere, in its express language nor by adopting expressly the provisions of of the reports in cases similar to this, but argued upon the direct and urscise interpretation of the statute of 1871, under which this proceeding was taken. This statute nowhere, in its express language nor by adopting expressly the provisions of any other statute, gave the Department of Public Parks any power to discontinue. On the contrary, it made the provisions of the general law applicable to this proceeding "for the purpose of sequiring title," that excluded the idea of deteating the object and end of the statute. Discretion and judgment were given to the Department of Public Parks in two particulars:—Pirst, the selection of the location. This they did and determined by certifying and filing the map. Second, to determine the day within two years when the public in terests required the proceeding to acquire title to be commenced, and then to commence it. By filing their petition in this case they had determined that fact that the public interests required the title of this land to be taken; that was the basis and limitation of their power. They could not change this determination. They had not pretended to change it. Taeir resolution of discontinuance in January, 1874, was without any grounds or reasons and a purely arbitrary act. The effect of commencing this proceeding was the same as if the act had ordered it to be done on that day. The whole character of the act was manuatory in all its provisions. This improvement the Legislature had determined to be necessary, and they meant that it should be carried out. Here was the strong distinction between this proceeding and the general provisions of the act of 1897. At that time, when the rectangular system of streets and avenues was established, the wants of the city for a century were provided for, and it was proper to give a power to discontinue and renew. In this act the parade ground was needed forthwith, and a different discretion was given to the city for a century were provided for, and it was proper to give a firm of the power when to commence the pr ustitutional, adverse to them completed, except the determination and payment of their compensation, and argued that they had constitutional, legal and equitable rights to have the proceeding go on. The Commissioners were right in testitating under the orders of a city department, and the advice of the Corporation Counsel that they had no power to make their report, and the property owners had a standing in court to ask that they be ordered to make their report, which, except for this contemplated discontinuance, they were in all respects ready, able and willing to do, if this order were made the rights of one party would be impaired. The report would be made and every right and question guarded and passed on at the Special and General Terms. But if the order was relinsed the owners were left in a state of peculiar har, ship; their property was condemned to the public use. The Department of Public Parks had exhausted their powers; there was no way for them to get their money, and they were wally without remedy.

FOINTS IN OPPOSITION.

Mr. Andrews, Assistant Corporation Counsel, said, in reply, that he would indicate the main points raised in opposition to the motion, and promised to supplement these by an extended hirst, which he would submit in a few days. He was aware of the interest naturally feit in the matter by the owners of the eight-two acres of swamp land that had been selected for a public parade ground, but the property advertised. He was aware of the work, which would cost not only a million for the ground, but nearly haif a million additional for laying out the same, he thought had an interest also in the matter, and should have been notified of the present motion. He appeared for the Corporation Counsel and could hardly tell for whom the opposing counsel appeared, but understood it to be for the property owners. As to these property owners, that is the owners of the selected ground, all he had to say was that they had mistaken their remedy. The statme provided that it in cases like the present the Commissioners

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS. Attempt at Burglary.

In this court yesterday George Meyers pleaded guilty to an attempt at burglary in the third degree, the indictment charging that on the 24th of June ne broke into the premises of Charles Speidel. The punishment inflicted was imprisonment in the State Prison for two years and six months.

Larcentes.

John Gilly, who on the 27th of June stole $7 from the person of Michael Shea, pleaded guilty to an attempt at petit larceny from the person. He was senienced to the Poultentiary for one year. Otto Metzer, a youth charged with stealing on the 25th of June a quantity of gatters, the property of Patrick Lega, pleaded guity to petit larceny. He was sent to the House of Refuge. A Professional Car Pickpocket Sent to the State Prison for Five Years. George Davis was tried and convicted of larceny from the person in stealing $105 from Frederick Schell on the 20th of June, while riding on a Dry Dock and East Broadway car. The evidence, aithough circumstantial, was convincing. When ductor saw the prisoner and his companion inmp off the car he stated to the passengers that two noted pickpockets had left the car, and intwo noted pickpockets had left the car, and inquired it anybody had lost anything. Mr. Scheil looked and discovered that his roit of bitis had disappeared. He and his orother gave chase, and were joined by a policeman, who succeeded in catching the prisoner in Delancey street. He was searched in the station house, but no money was lound upon him, he having, no doubt, in the meantime, passed it to his confederate, who escaped.

The prisoner when arrested denied that he was on the car, but when he went into the witness box admitted that he was upon the car, but nad noththe car, but when he went into the witness box admitted that he was upon the car, but had nothing to do with the iarceny. He said he ran because he knew his reputation was bad, he having served a term in the State Prison and Pententiary.

His Honor imposed the highest penalty the law allowed, which was imprisonment in the State Prison for five years.

FIFTY-SEVENTH STREET POLICE COURT. A Case of Accidental Shooting.

Before Judge Sherwood. On Tuesday evening Hugh Keily, of No. 119 East Twenty-ninth street, was shot in the left thigh while sitting on a chair in the back yard. It was not known who had fired the shot until a few hours later, when the police of the Twenty-first precinct learned that Benjamin R. Buckwaiter, of No. 116
East Thirtieth street, had been firing at a tom-cat in his back yard just about the time Kelly was wounded. He was arrested and taken to court, where he was committed to await the result of Mr. Kelly's injuries. An effort was made to trace the course of the ball and ascertain its location, but the physician (Dr. Burke) was not successiu; and it is leared in consequence that the wound may prove fatal. Mr. Buckwaiter claims that somebody else as well as he tried to shoot the tom-cat, and portinently asks why it is that he has not also been arrested. learned that Benjamin R. Buckwalter, of No. 116

BROOKLYN COURTS.

COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER.

Extraordinary Term-Second Day's Proceedings in the Trial of the Tax Office Embezziement Case-Testimony for the

Before Judge Daniels and Associate Justices. The trial of ex-Assistant Tax Collector A. W. H. Gill was resumed in the Extraordinary Term of the Court of Oyer and Terminer, before Judge Daniels and Justices Voorbies and Johnson, yesterday. The attendance was confined chiefly to officials and members of the Bar, the latter finding sufficient profit in listening to the argument raised upon the motion of counsel for the defence to ac-quit, on the ground that the indictment varied with the proof, the allegation being that the tax was received on assessments of local improvements, and the proof that it was the general tax assessment; also that the money was not Brook-lyn city money, but the funds of Kings county, and also that the charter of 1874 repealed the office and duties of the Assistant Tax Collector.

Mr. Van Cort, who conducted the case for the District Attorney, after the opening of the Court, delivered a very lengthy argument in reply to District Attorney, after the opening of the Court, delivered a very lengthy argument in reply to each objection raised by General fracy for the defence. The counsel replied in advocacy of his position, but the Court, having given both sides a patient nearing, decided adversely to the prisoner. General tracy then opened the case for the prisoner, claiming that Mr. Gill had entered the Tax Office as a boy and had risen steadily to the practical head of that department. From $5,000,00 of to $9,000,000 a year had passed safely through his hands, and yet the only accusation made against him is respecting the paitry sum of $192. In concussion he asked the jury to acquit the prisoner, and send the young man forth to a life of usefulness and honor.

City Assessor William A. Furey said that he filled the office of entry clerk him years ago in the Tax Office, in the receiving department; had known Gill for twelve or fifteen years; he was an assistant to a deputy their, he was absent for four or five years at the war; soon after his return he was made Deputy Collector under Isaac Radeau; there were six or seven clerks then employed in the receiving room; the routine of receiving money was the same then as now; it was not possible for the deputy to receive the money in Gill's office; there is nothing to prevent an entry clerk from stealing there was nothing to prevent the tickler clerk sering it; the business of the office frequently called Gill from the cash room; have seen clerks frequently receive the money in Gill's office; there is nothing to prevent an entering it; Gill could only detect the loss of the money of the tax rolls; if a stranger took the money it would be missed at night, when the books came to be balanced.

Ex-Collector Edmund Driggs testified:—I was nothing to revent the tickler clerk from taking the money and not entering it; Gill could only detect the loss of the money of the care from taking the recommendation of a large number of prominent citizens, Judge Lott and the Mayor among others; Gill's char when he was not there Mr. Badeau, my Deputy, or myself; the money was counted, and, if it corresponded to the bill, it was handed to the desetters, and he entered it and it was then passed down to the hist window; when we were not doing much the money was kept in the tills; when we received large amounts it would be passed over to a table in the roar and counted by myself. Deputy, or by Mr. Gill and Mr. Clem; the Collector or his Deputy indorsed the checks; the money was generally noder the eye of the receiver; it was more or less accessible to every one in the office; the clerks generally went to lunch in the middle of the day; the books had to be made up after the office closed; it was Gill's duty to be there at eight o'clock in the morning, and he left from four o'clock to twelve o'clock at night; the clerks keeping the stokler and the cash book could steal if they had a mind to; so could any one in the office who had the confidence of the Collector. Occasionally there was a mistake in not stamping and in stamping the wrong number, and I have found occasionally that money was not entered; if any of the cash was abstracted, the discrepancy would be detected at the end of the day; have known Gill nom the time he went into office up to the present time; when he returned from the war, gave him a place again in the office. Previous this affair he bore a spotiess character. I don't know of any young man in Brooklyn who was held in better repute and had more irlends.

Captain Gill also took the witness stand. He testi-fied as to the routine of duies he had discharged in the Tax Office and demied most emphaticany that he had ever stolen a dollar there or any place else in his line. He never owned a horse or diamond, save one which the employes of the office pre-sented him with. He never possessed any real estate or dealt in stocks, nor had he lived ex-travagantly. The Court adjourned until ten o'cloca this morning.

CALIFORNIA SILK CU. TURE.

Worm-How it is Hatched and Fed-The Cocoons.

The San José (Cal.) Mercury gives the following description of sericulture as carried on in Santa Clara county of that State:-William Paul's ranche of 260 acres is located on the northwestern border fruit trees of different varieties, 2,000 grape vines, about 60 acres in grain and the remainder in hay and pasture. For several years Mr. Paul has made a specialty of slik growing, for which business this soil and climate is specially adapted. A short description of the process may not be uninteresting. We are to suppose that the mulberry trees are sufficiently grown to furnish food for the are sufficiently grown to lurnish food for the worms.

The pirst thing is to hatch the eggs.

This is accomplished by placing them in a case with a tin bottom, arranged with shelves like a bookcase. This case is heated by means or a spirit lamp placed underneath, at first to twenty degrees centigrade or seventy-five degrees Fahrenheit; the temperature is increased each day by placing a sheet of paper under the lamp, thus gradually elevating it until the thermometer marks the required heat. If the eggs are good they will hatch in from ten to twelve days. When they begin to hatch they will nearly all come out in one day; a few however, will not hatch until the second day. If the eggs have been exposed to variable temperature during the winter a longer time will be required. Belore the eggs are placed in the case, however, they must be bathed. This is done by placing them in sait water, in the proportion of half a pound of sait to a gallon of water if the eggs are oud; if new, the proportion is reduced one-haid, they remain in the bath about five hours, and are then rinsed in tresh water seven or eight times.

eggs are out; it new, the proportion is reduced one-hail. They remain in the bath about five hours, and are then rinsed in iresh water seven or eight times.

After the young worms are out they are piaced on the shelves in a well ventilate d apartiment, with the temperature kept uniform at from eighteen to twenty degrees Reammy, and fed every three hours during the day, and at least once in every four hours during the night. In feeding young worms the mulberry leaves must be cut up almost as fine as hair. As they get older and stronger the leaves are led with little or no cutting. The leaves are picked at least twelve hours before feeding. Every day or two a quantity of refuse leaves accumulates on the shelves, and must be removed. This is done by laying over the worms sheets of thick paper perforated with holes large enough or them to pass through. On the top of the paper leaves are spread, and the worms coming up through the holes to get the leed can be inted to one side and the snell cleaned out. The process also serves to separate the healthy from the unhealthy worms. If a worm is not in good condition it will not have energy enough to go through the holes, and can by this means be detected and rejected. After the worms have been led eighteen or twenty days

This time is indicated by the appearance of the worm. If, on hoding up one to the light, he appears fall of water, this is the time for making the web hussard stalks, with the brush on them, are set up between the shelves, the worms craw up on them, spin a web, roll themselves up in it and spin another web on the inside, thus forming the cocoon. With good attention and under avorable circumstances this process requires about twelve or fairteen days; if the weather is very warm it will require about eighteen days. This can be ascertained by shaking the cocoon for it rattles the worm has finished it: it not, it is either unfinished or the worm is dead, and by opening one two cocoons are placed on a table, the ranged ends of silk picked off carefully. They the males and lemales are paired off and placed in a dark, cool room, on sheets of paper, letting them remain about six hours. The males are then destroyed and the lemales placed on tinen cloth, stretched vertically. They are placed on the upper edge of the cloth, about a quarter of an inch apart, and lay their eggs as they descend; each plece of cloth is marked with its weight before the eggs are deposited the weight of the eggs can be ascertained. The butterflies should be handled only by boys or girls, their hands being more tender than those of adults. They are allowed to remain on the cloth out one day. One butterfly will produce about 500 eggs, and there are about 50,000 eggs in an onne.

Several years, and, it they are known to be good, can be readily sold for $5 per ounce; but if they are not well known, cannot generally of sold for an ounce of eggs. The superin endent of Mr. Paul's sirk business is Signor Pavio Consonao, whose family in Milan be ore the Garbaidian troubles constituted the first six house in Italy. He says the climate and soll in this locality is much better adapted to seriouiting than that of France or Italy; that our leaves contain more sugar and rosain—two primary elements—than those of any other country. It is necessary for every farmer to set out a few trees, and either raise his own cocons or sell the leaves to others. By doing a little every year the country would, in a short time, work into an industry that would give profitable employment to thousands of men, women and chalifren and add immensely to our general wealth. He estimates that an average boy can thoroughly learn all the details of silk growing in two seasons. If one member of each lamb should take the trouble to do this he could take charge of a lew worms and trees on his home place and teach other members of the family, until, in a very short time, the whole household will be skillud sericulturists. This is the way it is done in Europe, and is the only way in when silk growing and silk manufacturing can become an ind
